

David Lanz

David Lanz is the head of the swisspeace Mediation Program and lectures at the University of Basel. He focuses on mediation process design, power-sharing and sanctions & mediation. Before his current role, he was seconded by the Swiss Expert Pool of Civilian Peacebuilding to the OSCE Secretariat in Vienna to help build the OSCE's mediation support capacity and to support the OSCE's response to the crisis in and around Ukraine in 2014. Previously, he worked as a researcher at swisspeace and with the UN Mission in Sudan. He is a trained mediator and has experience as an election observer with the Carter Center in South Sudan.

David Lanz holds a doctorate in political science at the University of Basel, examining the role of norms in international interventions in armed conflicts with a focus on the Darfur conflict. He has a Master's degree from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University as well as a licence from the Graduate Institute in Geneva. He has published on different aspects of collective security, including in the Oxford Handbook of UN Peacekeeping Operations, International Negotiation, Security & Human Rights, Global R2P, African Affairs, and the Journal of Modern African Studies.
